Promoting public health research, policy, practice, and education is the mission of the American Journal of Public Health. As we widen our scope to embrace global issues, we also sharpen our focus to support the needs of public health practitioners. We invite contributions of original unpublished research, opinion and commentary, departments, and letters to the editor.

The Journal is printed on acid-free recycled paper and is mailed in recyclable plastic.

Cover. The aerial view on the cover this month signals our issue theme of weapons of mass destruction. This other-worldly scene is in fact the Area 3 Nevada Test Site. The pictured containers are full of low-level nuclear waste, which is being buried in craters caused by underground nuclear testing.
